Charlotte, the wife of Richard, who died 20.12.1775 aged 53.

"Here lies a pilgrim wearied out on Earth
Her friends lament in vain her absent worth
Her weakness the grave shall ever hide
Her brother keeps the soul for which she died
Suffice to say she lov'd and was from all removed."
(I cannot say what this means?)

John Henderson BA of Pembroke College. Oxford, departed this life at Oxford, 2.11.1788 aged 31.

"With hold the hand, nor seek thee chisels and
To add a mole hill to a mount of fame
Tell humble stone here Henderson is laid
And bear the best of epitaphs his name."

John, KW, lab, executed for murder of Eliza Balsom, supposedly after a lover's quarrel, but more likely an accident. Opinion now is that Eliza died not from the wound but by the application of filthy bandages which turned it septic. After execution Horewood's body was given over to dissectionists. A book survives giving account of the murder bound in Horewood's skin. BTM 4 & 5.2.1821. Now at BRO. This book was exhibited in KW in the window of White's bookshop in 1953, in 1953, as part of Festival of Britain display where, in my youth, I saw it myself. The roots of this index therefore lie in Braine's History which I read aged 10, and the tragic teenager Horewood's book.
